Only Going Forward

Most of you have probably heard by now that Jay was diagnosed with a rare form of cancer. Most days he feels well and is doing better all the time. He went back to Texas to get evaluated, tested re-diagnosed, and now treated. We have been confident all the while that our God whom we serve is able, and He will deliver him from this fiery furnace.

and I, are so happy at the promise of having him back with us and have no doubt that God will finish the work He began in his body. To quote my Savior "It is finished".

During these few months we have had to reevaluate all of our plans for the short term and long term future. The bottom line is, we are not scaling back--but moving forward, no matter what the scene when they are yelling at the militia to "Hold the line", "HOLD THE LINE", "Push forward", and then they route the English and then Benjamin Martin waves the flag? Recently, I have heard those lines from that movie in my head on many occasions. At times it would be easy to sit back and survive and not do more than I have to, but then I hear those words "hold the line" "push forward". This Gospel is even more important and is worth fighting for. Children are worth fighting for. Love is worth fighting for. So have no doubt, we are not packing up and going home defeated, we are pushing forward, doing more and loving more.

Thank you for standing with us in agreement that Jay is wholly whole and the children and me are lacking for nothing. Thank you as well for your partnership, your prayer and your love. Together we are changing lives.

Actually, one of the hardest parts of this whole ordeal has been the separation with Jay in Texas, and me here in Guatemala. His heart longs to be in Guatemala with me and the kids. Now, after more than two months, it looks like he will be coming back to Guatemala and just travel to the US for treatments. We, the children circumstances, we are continuing to do all God has told us to do. We will not allow cancer or anything else deter us from what God has called us. We will minister more. We will help more people.

One of Jay's favorite movies is The Patriot. Remember, in the big battle

We would like to introduce you to two of our newest children which have come to The House of Destiny to be loved and encounter our loving Savior. They may have been abandoned and severely malnourished but the Gospel changes everything. God made a way for them to be here with us because He knew we (you and us), would love them into the kingdom. It would have been easy to say, "no we are full, we have this and that going on" but then what would have happened to these two? We move only forward never back, from faith to faith, glory to glory.

Iris is 10 months old and is absolutely beautiful.

Eswin is 4 years old and is wearing 18 month clothes and is cute as a button
